

Lincoln's Day The Jury Has Listened Written Words Do Not Save Learning How to Spend

On the birthdays of great men it is customary to say, "If so and so could come back." On this, Lincoln's birthday, you are inclined to say, "Thank Heaven Lincoln cannot come back!"

He would find too many things to worry and puzzle him. From Key West to Seattle, and from San Diego northeast to Portland, Maine.

In Lincoln's mind one thousand dollars was a respectable amount of money. He would find his country moved up to the "billion dollar unit."

The "gigantic debt of one billion seven hundred millions" piled up by the Civil War had attracted little attention in modern finance.

Nevertheless, Lincoln was a great American, greatest of all except one. And his mother, Nancy Hanks, was a great woman, never forget her.

You are glad that on his birthday Lincoln lies peacefully in his grave, safe from foolishness and worry. That is the one comfort. "We die once, and do not return, or if we do, we do not know it."

The Hauptmann jury may be locked up today to discuss its verdict. The trial is an interesting test of the jury system, with men and women of jury listening to more than one million five hundred thousand words of testimony, a good deal to remember.

They have heard scores of witnesses contradict each other under oath, have inspected almost 400 exhibits, from the clothing of the unhappy Lindbergh child to the ladder, nail holes in the ladder, pieces of board from Hauptmann's house.

Many newspapermen, experienced in criminal cases, expect conviction. The jury, made up of Colonel Lindbergh's neighbors, have heard him say that he recognized Hauptmann as the voice as that of the man who took the ransom money.

Much testimony has been contradicted, but there is no denial of the fact that Hauptmann possessed thousands of dollars of the ransom, the identical gold certificates that Colonel Lindbergh paid in the hope of recovering his child.

The law says not that the accused must prove his innocence, but that the prosecution must prove his guilt. That is not the situation in this trial. The accused, being found in possession of money paid for the return of the kidnapped child, is expected to prove his innocence of the kidnapping.

HAUPTMANN ENEMY NO. 1, WHILE THE SHOUTS AT JURY

FOUR Try Prison BREAK

BLIND GUARDS WITH PEPPER

In a desperate attempt to escape, four State Prison convicts hurled pepper in the eyes of four guards today.

Blocked from the blinded guards clung to the manacles and twisters, the convicts later attempted to wreck an automobile taking them to court.

Both attempts were made while were on their way for arraignment in connection with an attempted prison break January 9.

The four men, one a life, had attempted to "Dillinger" their way out of prison in January.

Two had wooden guns, which they converted into clubs to beat two guards when the ruse of the guns failed.

The other two had hidden behind the prison laundry.

Southbridge Mill Sold, Jobs Saved

Southbridge, Feb. 12—In 3000 homes of Southbridge a prayer of thanksgiving went up today when announcement came that the mill of the Hamilton Woollen Company, Inc., which were to be shut down because of labor troubles, will continue to operate under new management.

Richard Lennihan, president of the company, stated that the stock, machinery and buildings, except for some properties taken over by a local group, have been sold to J. P. Stevens and Company of New York, operators of many textile mills throughout the country.

The Stevens company, Lennihan said, will continue employing the present 1000 workers and perhaps add more.

President Lennihan revealed that in order to facilitate the sale of the main properties, a group of four public-spirited Southbridge citizens had agreed to purchase several properties of the Hamilton company.

These include what is known as the old Top Mill, the Central Mill, several houses used by Hamilton Woollen Co. executives and families, a 10-acre lot upon which the company had been planning to build a new plant, and the Hamilton Athletic Field.

John J. Maguire, historian of Massachusetts Department, American Legion, gave a vivid description of a play for children in a South End theater during which the children, dressed in Stars and Stripes and saluted a red flag.

He charged that alien teachers are employed in Waltham and Watertown and that a man, once teacher in Middlesex county school recently taught his pupils that a certain former Massachusetts governor was a "crook."

Maguire added: "I would be afraid to repeat what this teacher told the pupils about the present President of the United States."

SCHOOL Radicals PLAYED

RED FLAG SALUTE BARED

School children refusing to salute the American flag!

A seven-year-old boy declaring: "The red flag is my flag!"

A teacher depicting all public officials "crooks!"

These and similar scenes in Massachusetts schools were outlined to a legislative committee today as the best proof that a bill to require the oath of allegiance to school teachers should become law.

John J. Maguire, historian of Massachusetts Department, American Legion, gave a vivid description of a play for children in a South End theater during which the children, dressed in Stars and Stripes and saluted a red flag.

He charged that alien teachers are employed in Waltham and Watertown and that a man, once teacher in Middlesex county school recently taught his pupils that a certain former Massachusetts governor was a "crook."

Maguire added: "I would be afraid to repeat what this teacher told the pupils about the present President of the United States."

Maguire said that the 12-year-old son of a prominent Boston man passed out Communist circulars at the South End show—without the knowledge of his parents.

He quoted also the reply of a seven-year-old Cambridge pupil to his teacher's query as to why he refused to salute the flag: "The red flag is my flag."

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12—The state, bringing the murder trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann towards its end today, charged the defense was financed by "cranks, idiots and fools," called Hauptmann "Public Enemy No. 1 of this world," and asked the jury to show no mercy.

"This murder of the Lindbergh child," cried Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, "should shrink into absolute insignificance in comparison to the crime that would be committed if this man were freed. That would be the crime of the century."

"To let him roam the streets of this country and make every woman in her home shudder again, that would be a real tragedy, an American tragedy."

The attorney-general characterized the Bronx carpenter, who is accused of kidnapping and murdering baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., an "animal lower than the lowest form in the animal kingdom."

"If you get the feeling that this case is what Mr. Reilly says, a perfect case, it is your solemn duty to find a verdict of murder in the first degree."

He described what he called a perfect case for mercy, and declared the Hauptmann case was not of that kind.

"There may be some questions that can't answer," he gestured toward Hauptmann. "But there sits a man who can answer them."

"He will be thrown out, he is out, yes, he will be out when he hears that watch. That's the time he will talk."

At that point the court admonished Hauptmann and his wife to make no outcry at anything he said.

He kept his hand toward Hauptmann's defense staff.

"There is nobody at that table who doesn't feel he is guilty. I don't care what they say."

He denied Reilly's contention that the state had to prove Hauptmann was guilty of the crime.

"He could have had no help. He participated in this murder."

Wilentz asked himself what type of man would commit the Lindbergh crime. He also answered himself: "He would be an American. No American gangster and no American racketeer ever sank to the level of killing babies."

"It had to be a fellow that had his water in his veins, not his blood."

"It had to be the fellow that was not of this country."

NO GOLD Ruling Indicated TODAY

By International News Service

Washington, Feb. 12—The Supreme Court today began hearing arguments in pending cases, indicating there would be no decision in the gold cases at this session.

Because rumors had spread that a decision might be announced while the stock markets were closed today, several lawyers vital to investors in the cases were among the 2000 spectators who filled the courtroom.

The court, meeting promptly at noon, disposed of the usual preliminaries of receiving applications for admission to the bar and motions before proceeding to hear arguments in pending cases.

HEARING ON LEONARD OUSTER REFUSED

STORY OF SWEENEY FUNERAL AND PICTURE ON PAGE 12

There will be no hearing on Governor Curley's removal of Police Commissioner Leonard Sweeney tomorrow.

The governor plans to submit the removal to the executive council and ask for a vote. Confirmation of the removal is expected.

Police Commissioner Leonard Sweeney had demanded a hearing on his ouster and also insisted that the governor should not preside but merely preside over the hearing.

was an egomaniac who thought he was omnipotent. "It had to be a secretive fellow that wouldn't tell his wife about his money. "It had to be a fellow that could undergo hardships. The kind of fellow that would stow away on a boat and travel three thousand miles to sneak into the country in a coal bin. "Yes, it would have to be the type of man that would hold up women at the point of gun, women wheeling baby carriages. "And the authorities have found an animal lower than the lowest form in the animal kingdom, Public Enemy No. 1 of this world—Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

When court convened at 10:01 a. m., Wilmenz asked that the defendant and his wife be sequestered not to interrupt with any demonstration such as they made earlier in the trial. Wilmenz then turned to the jury and said: "You men and women, who have been with us all these days, have been patient. I have been patient. If there is a claimer for the life of this man, as indicated by a delightful adversary, it comes not from you or me, but from the evidence. Wilmenz asserted: "If there is such a claimer from the American people, as my adversary says, the American people aren't awarded as easily as you say that. There must be a good basis for it, but, after all, you are the judges."

He spoke quickly of his entrance into the case last week, and said Hauptmann was extradited to New Jersey. The murder was the first on the case, the further the trial progressed, the more he said, he was convinced he was pursuing "a righteous and proper course."

He referred to Wilmenz's admonition to the jury to "judge not lest ye be judged," and said the defense chief had overlooked the other biblical text, "and he that kills another man shall be put to death."

Every Avenue Leads to Bruno

"For all these months since last September nothing has come to the surface that indicates any other culprit but the defendant, Bruno Richard Hauptmann," he declared.

"Every avenue of evidence," he asserted, "leads to the same place—Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

The jury, he said, "was serving this court, serving this state, and serving the country."

"He ask you to do your duty," he said. "I can't compromise with murder and murderers. "We ask for conviction of murder in the first degree. A minute later Wilmenz asserted: "Either this man is guilty or he is innocent. And if he is guilty you have got to convict him."

Reilly's assertion, he said, that the jury must determine Hauptmann did the kidnapping alone was "the law."

The law, Wilmenz went on, would support Hauptmann's guilt, if there were many persons involved. "Let the defense bring in the dead body of Violet Sharpe and lay it beside him, let him bring in the grave of Isidor Fisch, and still he would be guilty," he asserted, his voice rising.

He swung a gesture toward the defense table, and leaned forward confidentially to the attentive jury. "There is nobody at that table who doesn't believe he is guilty. I don't care what they say," he said.

"Thawed When He Hears Switch"

He glanced toward the job Hauptmann and gestured that there he sits, the man who can answer all the questions all the questions all the questions.

higher than Lindy, an egomaniac, a fellow who was secretive.

"It had to be a fellow who liked to see his name screaming across newspaper headlines."

"Public Enemy No. 1 of World"

"It had to be the type of man who in Germany when he was glorified chose the burgomaster and the leading citizens of his town. "There is something in the mind of a man who is a murderer when he did his crime, he had to pick someone who was respected and prominent. "It would have to be a man who would forsake and disgrace his nation."

"It would have to be the type of a man who would forsake his own mother and leave her alone," he continued.

"It would have to be the type of man who would hold up women wheeling baby carriages in Germany."

"We've found him and he's here for your judgment," Hauptmann said and flushed.

Defends State Witnesses

"Chief counsel for the defense says our case is too perfect," he went on.

"They attack our case. They attack the integrity of men of reputation come sixty and seventy years of age sworn to do their duty."

"The state is not on the level," Wilmenz shouted, "the entire prosecution, the jury, Hauptmann and Judge Large, are tarred with the same stick."

He was referring to the two Flemington men on the prosecution side, the prosecutor Anthony M. Hawk, Jr., and former Judge George K. Large.

Wilmenz asked Colonel Schwarzko to stand.

"He is the head of the state police stood while Wilmenz asked if he looked like a 'rat'."

Major Henry D. Bruchmann of the Bronx police stood up.

He was ridiculing the implication of the state witnesses that Hauptmann had "planted" the handwriting on the closet panel of the state police.

More Crooks Among Lawyers

Reading from the transcript of the extradition proceedings, and Hauptmann's examination in the court, Wilmenz told the jury that Hauptmann had acknowledged at those times he wrote the Jaffa address and phone numbers on the closet board.

Few kings or presidents have the power today which rests in the hands of these twelve humble citizens of Hudson county, New Jersey. It's the power of life or death. The electric chair for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, long in May, 1932, and reported on it in June, 1932. He referred scornfully to the defense stars that the state witnesses had uttered motions in testifying, whereas the defense witnesses were prompted by justice alone.

"Of course, these defense witnesses were prompted by the defense radio broadcasts, before the trial, no broadcasts during the trial, and I tell you there will be none after the trial."

He spoke of Arthur J. Knober, the state's wood expert, whom Reilly said was looking for advancement.

In Conference With President

"He must have been looking for advancement," Wilmenz snorted. "He, who went up and down the country tracing fraud, tracing it finally to the Bronx."

"Major-General John F. O'Ryan, too," said Wilmenz. "Now, why was he brought here?"

"Our adversary said he had ceased to become police commissioner of New York city for a very good reason."

"Major-General O'Ryan saw service in command of a division of the United States army in France."

"When the defendant said he told Commissioner O'Ryan where the money was, we had to bring him down in the gutter beside Hauptmann."

During the first hour of Wilmenz's address, the jurors scarcely moved. All except Verna Snyder gazed intently at the attorney-general and followed him closely.

Snyder kept her head lowered—a characteristic attitude throughout the case of money. Wilmenz attacked the defense plan of lack of money.

"I think they've got lots of money," he shouted. "Money from cranks, fools, all over the country."

Reilly, he declared, had a reputation of representing more criminals than any other lawyer in New York.

"I don't know if I could do that. If I were ever live to face a jury," he said.

in six months. "Germany," he said, "will never forgive him for the disgrace he has brought upon his nation."

"But he is an more representative of Germany than the Italian who assassinated Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago was representative of Italy."

Wilmenz gave an explanation of why the child didn't cry.

"He crushed that child right in that room into insensibility. That's why there was no outcry," he said.

Wilmenz ridiculed the defense theory that the beer stein in the window recess would have been disturbed by the kidnaper.

"Now, there has been a lot of talk about the bungling of the state police. They're human. They're ordinary beings," he said.

"Supposing there was bungling. If there was, it was so before Hauptmann arrived. This bungling doesn't affect him."

His bungling in his talk of—that doesn't relieve the defendant who is guilty of murder."

"He can't walk out of this courtroom a free man because someone didn't do his job as well as some expert from New York would have done."

"This bungling, it is something which has nothing at all to do with his guilt."

"The defense says Dr. Condon was always alone," the prosecutor went on, turning to the implications of Reilly's assumption that the ransom intermediary was involved in the crime.

Murderers and kidnappers don't deal with intermediaries in public Wilmenz reasoned.

The kidnaper picked long cemeteries on opposite sides of his home to deal alone with Dr. Condon, he asserted.

"That's why Dr. Condon was alone," he declared.

12 Who Hold Key to Bruno Fate

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12 (AP)—The jurors who will decide the fate of Bruno Hauptmann are:

1. Charles Walton, Sr., the former man-former semi-pro baseball player, a gray-haired man with clean-cut features, who has followed the testimony closely.

2. Mrs. Rosie Pill, stout widow of Clinton, N. J., who takes care of her two grandsons by doing bread work.

3. Mrs. Verna Snyder—largest person on the jury, wife of a Generville blacksmith, who has an adopted son.

4. Charles E. Snyder—33, a gravel-faced farmer of Clinton, father of several children.

5. Mrs. Ethel Stockton—32, pretty wife of an automobile salesman, mother of a 7-year-old child.

6. Elmer Smith—35, former justice of the Peace of Lambertville, now an insurance man, has served on three juries.

7. Robert Cravatt—The "spectacular" jury bachelor, who is educational director of a C. C. C. camp.

8. Philip Hockenbury—40, owner of a farm near Annandale, N. J., a grizzled little man with a mustache.

9. George Voorhees—45, a farmer, father of three children, one of the most serious faces on the jury.

10. Mrs. May Brelsford—40, the one Flemington resident on the jury, a former lodge matron, who cares for two stepchildren.

11. Liscom Case—Elderly carpenter, who suffers from a heart ailment.

12. Howard V. Briggs—Usual played bookkeeper.

Roosevelt Is Right

WHAT is there back of the attempt in the Senate committee to fight the President on the subject of the wages to be paid under the pending relief appropriation bill?

Demagogues! Blatant, unadmissionable demagogues! PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S POSITION IS RIGHT!

He favors a wage larger than the present relief dole, but not so high as to cause recipients of relief to turn down private jobs or to leave private employment for the supposedly easier and less exacting work on government projects.

The Senate committee, by a vote which we are glad to see will be reconsidered, amended the bill by a provision that the government should pay the prevailing rate of wages to the recipients of public relief.

THE demagogues who backed this amendment are doing it to curry favor with certain labor organizations, and with no further thought. But these labor organizations are wrong. Their reasoning is faulty.

The amendment is not in the interests of labor. On the contrary, it is demonstrably opposed to the true interests of labor because it is against recovery, which is labor's sole hope for the re-creation of jobs and the absorption into gainful labor of the unemployed.

If the country, with its strained resources, its hesitating business, the near approach of taxpaying exhaustion, is still asked to provide assistance work for the unemployed, it is a great thing for which all should be thankful.

But the government is no stronger than the people, and there is a limit to the people's capacity to meet the requirements of relief.

This limit must be kept in mind. It must never be forgotten, that the real goal of the nation's effort is recovery, and not indefinite relief.

Don't Have to Believe Reilly

Betty Gow, he said, had been brought at the state's expense from Scotland. After her arrival in this country, he went on, all talk of her guilt ceased.

"Compare that with Betty Gow," he urged.

"No ransom note in her hand, writing or that of any other servant was found in the murder."

"No, it was Hauptmann."

"No ransom money was found in his garage."

Wilmenz summed up the attack on the servants and declared: "We protest and object to the jury meddling for one minute about these people. There's no evidence against them for one to consider, but if you do consider it, it doesn't change the guilt of Hauptmann."

He kidnapped the alien woman, he said, but he didn't change the guilt of Hauptmann."

Justice Trenchard called a recess upon Wilmenz suggestion. Court reconvened at 11:30 a. m. Despite a morning of vitriolic attack, the jury remained cheerful to his wife, Anna. The German couple, leaning toward each other, chatted animatedly throughout the suspension of Wilmenz examination.

"Let me suggest to you this point: that the state does not have to prove every fact that it alleges," Wilmenz resumed. "That's a fact, we don't have to prove every fact to convict this man," he said.

Tells Why Condon Was Alone

"The defense says Dr. Condon was always alone," the prosecutor went on, turning to the implications of Reilly's assumption that the ransom intermediary was involved in the crime.

Murderers and kidnappers don't deal with intermediaries in public Wilmenz reasoned.

Hauptmann Talks Cheerfully

The kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby was unimportant, Wilmenz declared in comparison with the possibility of the freeing of Hauptmann.

Dr. John F. Condon and his family, too, had been watched, Wilmenz continued. The federal government had spent huge sums in such surveillance and not a single implic-

TOWN ROOM—SECOND FLOOR

BRUNO'S Wife Sits Like STATUE

AS WILENTZ TALKS OF CHAIR

By Associated Press
Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann sat like a statue today while Attorney-General David T. Wilentz pointed to her husband and said:

"He's cold—he'll thaw out when he hears that swish."

Her pale face under the felt hat pulled down over eyes did not change its expression.

Her hands were folded in her lap. With her head drooping slightly she looked at the attorney-general's blue-faced figure as he urged the jury to convict her husband.

"Don't get weak if you think he's guilty!"

Four jurymen creaked at Wilentz, who leaned toward them with a clinched fist.

Mrs. Rosie Pitt rested her chin in one hand; Mrs. Verma Snyder clasped her black pocketbook in both hands and looked thoughtful.

Pale and Intent

The youngest jurymen, Mrs. Ethel Stockton, was pale and intent.

She and Mrs. May Bechtold, the middle-aged No. 10 juror, sat with folded arms.

Mrs. Hauptmann, wearing a high-necked brown dress, stared into space when Wilentz pointed to the defense table and said:

"There's nobody at that table that doesn't feel he's guilty. I don't care what they say."

Her hands fell to her knees. Wilentz's wife did not hear his monition. She attended only one session and left, saying:

"I made me nervous."

Mrs. Verma Snyder, No. 7 juror, was so upset after hearing the first part of the prosecution summation today she did not finish her lunch.

She left the crowded Union Hotel dining room after her first course and went to the jury's quarters by way of the back stairs.

Starving Baby Enters 15th Day

By Associated Press
Granite City, Ill., Feb. 12.—Baby Robert Jenkins was in his 15th day today without having received any nourishment since birth.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Jenkins, was born with a strictured esophagus that prevents any food entering his stomach. Physicians said he is doomed to death.

The closed esophagus was discovered when the infant underwent an intestinal operation. Physicians said the baby was too weak to withstand further surgery.

Hospital attendants said the baby appears to be in a coma much of the time.

HANDKERCHIEF Saves Train Wreck

Beekley, W. Va., Feb. 12 (AP)—All they had was a handkerchief tied on a stick but it was enough to stop a train and avoid possible disaster.

Charles Willis, 12, and his brothers Herschel, 10, and Charles, 8, were killed as heroes today. After struggling a slide on the Chesapeake & Ohio tracks they ran back a mile to wave their improvised flag and halt the train.

"We didn't want any railroad men to get killed. They're pretty good fellows. They wave at us when they pass," Charles declared.

4 Choices

By Associated Press
Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12.—The Hunterdon county jury deliberating on the guilt of innocence of Bruno Richard Hauptmann can do four things unless Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Brandeis instructs them otherwise:

1. Convict him with a mandatory death penalty.

2. Convict him with a recommendation of life imprisonment. Acquit him.

3. In event of a disagreement, the customary procedure is to conduct a new trial, but state prosecution officials say they must confer with Gov. Harold G. Hoffman before any decision would be reached.

Sidewalk Jury! Disagreement on Bruno's Fate

Will the Flemington jury, upon which the eyes of the world are concentrated today, convict Bruno Richard Hauptmann of the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.?

An unofficial jury of average Bostonians, six men and four women, assembled informally in a sidewalk jury box, were deadlocked today on the question.

Their inability to come to an agreement, if representative of the actual jury at Flemington, would mean a retrial for Bruno.

Their answers:

JOHN CONNERY, 36 Hall's place, expressed:

"I would vote for first degree murder because the man is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. The state has shown the ladder was built by Hauptmann. I don't believe the stories told by defense witnesses."

The state's handwriting experts have positively linked the ransom notes to Hauptmann, and Hauptmann's own testimony in the Bronx and at the trial was contradictory.

MISS MAY OSGOOD, 105 Summer street, Boston:

"I do not think the state has any case."

George Panis, 36 Hall's place, expressed:

"I think Bruno Hauptmann is innocent and should be acquitted. I think they have the wrong man. I don't think Hauptmann had any part in the actual kidnaping of Baby Lindbergh, robbery of the child's garments or extortion of the ransom money."

"If Hauptmann is not acquitted, it will be a tragedy on justice."

MISS DORA ALEENBERG, 121 Robyston street, Malden, singrapher:

"I would vote not guilty of murder, because there is no strong evidence supporting the charge."

"He is guilty of every other charge."

Max Osgood, John Connery established a case of murder against Hauptmann.

"However, I think it has been shown that he was guilty of complicity in the crime. He should receive a sentence of 20 years or life. But he should not be convicted on a first degree murder charge."

JACK BARRY, 815 East Fourth street, former:

"If I were on the Flemington jury, I would acquit Hauptmann on the evidence."

"I have followed it very closely and I believe that the state has not clearly established a case of murder against Hauptmann."

MISS ETHEL BECKSTROM, 105 Summer street, waitress:

"I think Hauptmann is guilty of the murder and kidnaping of Baby Lindbergh."

GEORGE PANIS, 35 Kingston street, chef:

"My vote is for first degree murder."

Jack Barry, Ethel Beckstrom murder, because I believe Hauptmann is guilty beyond reasonable doubt.

"I haven't missed a word of testimony, because I wanted to know myself about this case. If I were on the Flemington jury, I would not hesitate a minute and no one could budge me from my absolute conviction that Hauptmann is guilty of murder in the first degree."

MISS MOLLY SCOLING, 104 Columbia road, Dorchester, typist:

"If the charge is guilty or not guilty of murder, I could not conscientiously vote guilty because there is no direct evidence supporting the charge."

"I do believe, though, that he is guilty of every other charge that can be brought against him and that he should be convicted."

That Lieutenant-Governor Hurley had the hearing "in the interests of justice."

Just "Impertinence"

The governor retorted:

"That simply adds another reason for his removal. It was an unwarranted 'rationality and impertinence.'"

I shall conduct the proceedings tomorrow and no hearing will be given."

The statement indicated that the governor had pledged enough votes in his council for removal of Leonard without testimony, such as was recently required for removal of two Boston Finance Commission members.

Licenses for two other Boston night spots were withdrawn by the Boston licensing board. They were the Casino Club, formerly known as the St. Regis, Essex street, and the Tallyho Club in the North End.

The board had renewed a surrender of the Cosmos license in a letter which asked the board's officers in Beacon street, Chairman David E. McKinnon told reporters, however.

The licenses were not suspended because of that. They were suspended on testimony of a Police Captain Joseph McKinnon at the hearing today.

Gambling Den

Captain McKinnon of the South End division was the only witness heard. Montague informed him of the "under the door" surrender of the license.

Captain McKinnon said police investigation had proven that Joseph P. "Red" Sweeney, ex-convict victim of Friday's murder, was at the head of the first floor stairs at the time of the surrender.

He said a gambling den was found in the Sportsman's Club, directly across the Cosmos, that it was connected with the Cosmos and that David P. "Beano" Brown was active in the management of the club. He said Brown and others of the club were on the premises when the surrender occurred, but had refused to aid police in the investigation.

Montague said the letter accompanying the surrendered license was signed by Edward P. Feldman, clerk of the Cosmos board of directors. It was dated yesterday, not read.

"At a meeting of directors of the Cosmos Club held this day at the offices of the association, 92 Broadway, which meeting was called to order by President Daniel F. O'Connell, it was voted that the president be hereby authorized to surrender to the licensing board of the City of Boston the liquor license issued to the club, and to surrender the amusement license issued by said licensing board, and both be returned."

This letter was read by Captain McKinnon, who then argued for revocation.

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12.—When the Hauptmann trial ends, what will the principals do?

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh plans to fly the Pacific; the jurymen will return home.

Other trial principals have these plans:

Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State police.

"I'm going to take a good look at my son. He was born a week after the kidnaping, and I've hardly seen him."

Mrs. Jennie Curtis, wife of Sheriff John H. Curtis:

"The sheriff wants to go in a cave, where he'll not see a soul. I suppose I'll have to go along."

Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel:

"I'm going far away—I hope to Tahiti."

County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hanna:

"Right after the trial we're going to call the Hunterdon County Grand Jury, and present matters that may have some connection with this case."

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, chief prosecutor:

"I'm going to Miami, to see the horse races."

Rev. Artie A. Joseph, A. Lael, pastor:

"No vacation for me. I'm going to work on the legislature. I have two special deputy who have been assisting Hauptmann."

"I think I'll write a book."

Robert Ruccione, defense counsel:

"Back to the work that has to be done."

BRUNO SEAL 'Will Never' Fate in Bruno PRISON TALK JURY ROOM OVER HIS CELL

"EVEN IF I AM CONVICTED"

By LOU WEDEMAR
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann expects acquittal but if he is convicted of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, he will remain silent to the end.

This he told the writer, interviewed during a recess.

Hauptmann said:

"My conscience is clear, so there can be only one outcome and that is, 'not guilty.'"

He was asked:

"Richard, you know they may convict you. What will you do then?"

Hauptmann leaned forward a moment as if considering and then he turned back in his chair to reply:

"I do nothing."

"If you are convicted, will you talk and clear up this mystery?"

Hauptmann shook his head and answered:

"I'll never talk."

He was asked:

"If you are protecting some one, will you tell the real story to save yourself from the electric chair?"

Hauptmann's jaw set firmly, he smiled faintly and replied:

"No, I will say nothing—never."

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 12.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's fate will be decided within the gates of the prison in which he is now confined.

The eight men and four women who will give him life or death are to deliberate on the floor above his cell in the Hunterdon county jail, Sheriff John H. Curtis said today.

"The plan," said Curtis, "originally called for the courtroom as the scene for their deliberations, but I am taking no chances. The members of the jury will decide the case in a room above Hauptmann's cell."

Curly abandoned the idea of looking up the jury in the courtroom because of attempts to plant microphones in the room, and because he believed the jury can be better protected in the quarters he has decided upon.

"I am taking no chances," said Sheriff Curtis. "When the verdict is returned, I want everyone to have it at once. I want the story in the papers from the courtroom. I do not want any leaks. It is my job to see that it is handled properly."

Members of the jury will be fed in the jail by guards. Cigars will be placed at the convenience of the men, while cigarettes will be handy for all the jury.

Six guards will be assigned.

ETHIOPIA Troops MASSSED

30,000 LINE UP
AGAINST ITALY

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

Rome, Feb. 12—Thirty thousand Ethiopian troops are massing near the Italian Somaliland frontier in the vicinity of Ualual, a government spokesman revealed today.

This information was made public as 250,000 Italian reservists received mobilization orders and stood ready to join a possible African military expedition.

Of this number 30,000 already have been moved to concentration points and it was indicated the organization of units was still in progress.

At the same time 30 Italian army planes were en route to Ethiopia from Tripoli.

The supreme council of defense, presided over by Premier Mussolini, met today shortly after a government spokesman had announced that negotiations were continuing in Addis Ababa.

Italy was described as adamant in her previous demands for reparation for Italian casualties in several recent border incidents and had prepared a neutral zone along the British and Somaliland frontier.

Fear of Tribesmen

The spokesman said the government is convinced of the good intentions of Emperor Haile Selassie, but believes he is unable to control his tribal chieftains.

He conceded, however, that an Italian invasion of Ethiopia might have the effect of uniting these peoples behind their monarch. The fact that the mobilization announced in yesterday's communique is being extended was revealed as both reserve officers and privates of classes other than 1911, who received their orders yesterday, continued to receive instructions to report at their concentration centers.

Cards issued from the War Department notified the reservists to report to appear with full equipment.

The Ethiopian legion was under the guard of seven uniformed policemen today and no visitors were admitted.

Baggage, however, were admitted. A large moving van drove up to the side door of the legion and book cases, boxes and other furniture were carried out to the truck.

Minister May Leave

The activity indicated that either the Ethiopian minister, Negrasda Yessu, was leaving or that he was sending out his family.

Later, several members of Yessu's household put suitcases and handbags into a taxicab and drove away.

King Haile Selassie, Yessu said, has 80,000 armed men at his command prepared to battle to the death for their nation's independence.

A force of 1,000,000 can be raised on short notice, he declared. Italian official circles, however, estimated Ethiopia's potential military strength at not more than 200,000 trained fighters and eight airplanes—one of the tourist variety, a present from Italy to King Selassie at the time of his coronation.

MULLONEY STOCK

Transfer Bared

The 1000 share, of Inspiration Copper stock, part of the collateral for a loan made to Daniel C. Mulloney by the Brockton Trust Company, were returned to him today, the company announced.

The hearing on the $2,000,000 suit by four state trust companies against the Federal National Bank continued today.

The withdrawal of the copper stock, on the plea that it had been sold and must be turned over to the brokers, reduced the collateral held by the Brockton company to a point where it did not cover the $500,000 loan, a former treasurer of the bank said.

Boston, State Begin Defense Week Rallies

National Defense Week, sponsored by the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, began today with patriotic and civilian societies through the state in readiness for rousing participation in its celebration.

An elaborate program has been arranged, featuring preparedness meetings, drills and demonstrations, that will reach its climax on Washington's Birthday.

Defender Week in Boston will be a blaze of patriotism in which reserve organizations will aid reserve officers directing the program. Rotary Kiwanis and Lions clubs throughout Massachusetts have arranged special meetings at which reserve officers will speak on national defense.

American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Military Order of the World War have planned meetings.

Most important will be the meeting of the combined reserve chapters at the City Club Friday night.

New York, Feb. 12—A vigorous, hard-hitting observance of National Defense Week will be launched today from coast to coast by the Reserve Officers' Association and other patriotic bodies in an effort to arouse public sentiment to the needs of an adequate national defense.

"Wake Up, America" will be the keynote of the series of programs to be staged in New York, under the auspices of the Manhattan chapter of the association.

Colonel Jerome Kingsbury, president of the chapter, declared that each day will bring a message through the press and by radio, of the needs of the army, navy and air corps. The observance will extend over 11 days, closing on Feb. 22, Washington's birthday.

Radio Speeches

The most ambitious program ever attempted by the reserve officers in their promotion of national defense, will be a series of 11 programs, one on consecutive days on radio station WINS.

These programs, all of 45 minutes duration, will be featured by military and patriotic music by the Eleventh Infantry band, from Governor's Island, and a talk by a reserve officer on some phase of national defense.

The "wake up, America" program on station WINS will begin each afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Radio program in the daily newspapers will list national defense talks to be given on other local radio stations.

LEGION Chief Wars on REDS CALLS NATION TO ARMS

By Universal Service
Chicago, Feb. 12.—Preservation of the republic founded by Washington is the most important task confronting the people of America today!

So declared Frank N. Bagnano, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, in a speech last night before the first division of the Cook County Council of the American Legion.

His speech was a resounding call to arms for all true Americans—and a reiteration of the Legion's ringing declaration of war against Communists and other enemies of the peace and security of the United States.

Declaring the hour had arrived for united action to drive out enemies of the American form of government, he said:

"Schools Invaded"

"Our land is filled with the propaganda of alien forces. The agents of Communism preach their doctrine of destruction openly. They have invaded our schools and our churches. No longer do they cloak their purpose in their newspapers and from the public rostrum they are calling agents for a revolution to overthrow our form of government and set up in its place the political slavery of Moscow."

"We do not deny other peoples and other nations the right to live under the form of government they choose. If Europe wants its Communism, Hitlerism, Fascism, or any other 'ism,' let them have it."

"But we do say that here in America there is room for only one 'ism.' That is Americanism. We stand firmly behind the Constitution of the United States. We uphold the right of free speech and a free press. But freedom of speech and freedom of the press end where treason begins."

"Communism in its present form has no legal or moral rights in this democracy of free people. We are having introduced in the Legislature of every state measures forbidding the use of the ballot by Communist office seekers."

"We hold that un-American and subversive influences should be driven from our institutions of learning, high and low."

"We stand for international understanding without entangling alliances."

"We hold that America should be safeguarded for American citizens and American ideals."

"And we stand for unflinching allegiance to the flag that is our ideal and our hope."

Indict Mother of Heiress

Mother of Heiress, State Senator Indicted in Miami

By Associated Press
Miami, Fla., Feb. 12.—A State Senator and a former actress, the mother of one of America's richest heiresses, were under indictment today as the Dade county grand jury ended its drive against gambling and crime in this resort city.

The jury's final act was to indict State Senator Hays H. Lewis of Marionville, Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas Magraw and 11 others yesterday on charges of operating gambling houses.

A criminal court judge, the chief of police and the city clerk already were under charges.

Mrs. Magraw is the mother of Lucetta Cotton Thomas, 9, who received an income from a $27,000,000 trust fund. Mrs. Magraw and her husband, Thomas, also charged as a gambling operator, are inmates of the Deauville Casino.

"Allied With Crime"

The jury said: "All of the offenses charged, other than capital crimes, involve directly or indirectly officials—city, county and state—who have either willfully failed to perform their duties, or have become active participants in the criminal program itself."

"These officials are without question allied with organized racketeers."

Other figures prominent in Miami's gambling operations, included: William Vincent Dwyer, one of the kingpins of racing in the South, majority stockholder in Tropical Park, part owner of the swank Palm Island Club in Biscayne Bay, and owner of the New York American hockey club; Mort Wertheimer, manager of the fashionable Beach and Tennis Club, Miami Beach; Albert J. Contente, known here as Al Howard, proprietor of the Embassy night club.

The final batch of indictments also named Charles Calk, held here in New York, on charges of holding up Mrs. Margaret Bell and Harry Contente, wealthy New Yorkers, and robbing them of jewels valued at $200,000 in the Miami Biltmore Hotel last month.

BONUS Rider Move on RELIEF BILL

Washington, Feb. 12.—An attempt to tack a soldiers' bonus rider on the Roosevelt administration's $1,400,000,000 work and relief bill was under consideration in some Republican circles in the Senate today.

Meanwhile administration leaders expressed confidence they could eliminate the McCarron amendment requiring payment of prevailing wages to 3,000,000 persons the administration plans to employ on public works. The administration plan is to pay $20 a month "security" wages.

Leaders were concerned that the Senate appropriations committee approve another Democratic proposal to cut the bill to $2,800,000,000. They think a bonus rider could be carried, for it has always failed in the Senate when presented as an amendment to another bill, but nevertheless they expressed some anxiety over the added delay such a fight might cause.

The appropriations committee was called to meet late today to take a final vote on the "wages" amendment.

"Good Morning"

Washington, Feb. 12.—All the labor department say "good morning" and whether they know each other or not.

Secretary Frances Perkins stated it recently when her department moved into imposing new quarters, she called the workers together in the new auditorium and made them a little speech, in which she suggested they say a cheery "good morning" to each other.

VETERANS Warned of RED MENACE

Break faith with the youth of America and Communism is ahead, Royal K. Hayes, past national chairman of the Veterans Division Veterans' Association, warned members of the Boston Y-D Post last night.

And with Communism rampant, ex-Chaplain Hayes declared, the government is doomed.

For the United States will be reduced to the same fate as Europe and Asia. Of these he said:

"They are now in a halcyon and both are headed for the cruelest of a bitter Dark Age."

"In spite of its limitations and vulgarity, Democracy is superior to Communism, Fascism and Hitlerism."

"Democracy is the best form of government for a free people."

The speaker warned that the government should build up its defenses on land, sea and in the air.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX GIVES ADVICE ON LOVE

Engagement Entails Reasonable Amount of Freedom

WHAT DOES an engagement mean nowadays—both to the giver and the wearer of it?

We older ones know what it used to mean. Engagements were almost solemn affairs preliminary to the marriage that was meant to last for life.

If a girl were a boy's engagement ring, she knew not only that he loved her, but that he wouldn't look at another girl until they were married. If he did, he would be generally disapproved of, and the girl would be advised to release him.

But the 1935 type of engagement? Does it surely mean, I wonder, that a man and a girl have at this time been attracted to each other and that they will probably marry it, in the meantime, neither of them falls in love with somebody else? And is this a chance for the "what do you think?"

"Fettered," a youth of 20, once said to a girl of 18, "I am glad that he feels he cannot give enough freedom to release the freedom he enjoys last voluntarily granted him."

"My fiancée," he explains, "lives in our home town. My job here in the city, I give her a handsome ring. I take her out a lot when I go home and we'll get married some day when I can afford it. But do you think that meanwhile she ought to ask me to shut myself up in a cell and see nobody?"

"I have a sociable disposition and there are several very snappy girls here that I like to go around with. The girl to whom I am engaged heard about this in some way and wrote me a terrible letter to say that she could not stand it. 'Do you love me any more?' she asked. 'No,' I said. 'I do with a girl who does like that? Doesn't she deserve to have me call the whole thing off?'"

Probably the old-fashioned engagement was too iron-clad, it was no doubt unnatural and foolish to expect both partners to an engagement to go out with no one else, dance with no one else, but the betrothed, especially if the two are living in different towns.

The former customs were, I think, prudish and exaggerated. And what a poor thing love would be if one couldn't trust one's lover or beloved ever to see anybody else! I am glad, I am for a reasonable freedom.

At the same time, an engagement that is too airy and casual can amount to just about as much as no engagement at all. There can be no happiness in being engaged if one cannot take the time that "fettered" takes.

It isn't merely that he wishes to be free to see all the girls he likes, it is that he wishes to be free to love with the girl who wears his ring. That being the case, I hope she will return the ring before he commits the ungrateful act of breaking off the engagement himself, because fidelity bores him.

Genuine love, the divine thing that can never go out of fashion, however much the customs of lovers themselves may change, is, of course, the only thing that makes an engagement really valid.

I wish that every girl whose hand sparkles with an engagement ring could understand exactly what I mean.

Who Loves More Intensely?

MAJOR EDWARD BOWEN, theatrical magnate, says: "I believe it depends upon the individual man or woman which one loves the more intensely."

"In almost every marriage, even though there be profound love, each love, one or the other loves more intensely and more emotionally than the other."

"I have always observed in married couples that the one who takes care of the other. Perhaps one is blessed with better health, or has a more or less nervous nature, but there's always one to carry the main responsibility whether it be the man or the woman. And this does not mean that one loves less deeply than the other."

In my opinion, the capacity for love in man or woman is equal."

The Wrong Way to 'Love Best'

By NELL BRINKLEY

"TIS HARD TO BE IN LOVE AND TO BE WISE."

WE will say Jill has made Love a willing captive. She has taken for her own a young man's heart with the grace that were irresistible to him—beauty, beauty, accomplishment. And then, because perhaps she loves best in the well-known fashion of women with their might, she makes Love a "tie that binds," indeed! TOO TIGHTLY.

Even the bird on the bough could have told Jill that anything with wings needs to fly in the free air sometimes. And Love has wings.

Love can be a cage and a durand in the devoted hands of a woman who loves too well. She can be too attentive, too fond, so that she smotheres and hinders the thing she cares for most, and makes it struggle away from her instead of to her as she would have it.

NELL BRINKLEY.

CHAPTER 268

MY FATHER is accustomed to instant obedience from everyone, but Lillian nudged me gleefully as he told Avis Arlen, in answer to her theatrical appeal to Hugh, that the one thing she could do for all of us was to go back to her room, lock her door, and stay there until morning.

"Fie! this!" she murmured in my ear, using the inaudible speech which she had perfected. "It ought to be good."

The lights were on in our section of the corridor, and she had turned off the switch of the room lamp when she had opened the door at the first sound of Avis Arlen's voice. But at the head of the stairs the hall lamp was burning brightly, and while no one could see her, she was, in fact, the center of attention, and she was looking at the door of the room which she was about to enter.

It was as if we were in a darkened theater watching the actors upon the stage, and I found my nerves tensing as I listened for the reply which Avis would make to my father.

AVIS APPEALS TO HUGH But it was not to him that she spoke. Disregarding him in a way that I do not believe he ever had experienced before, she made a sudden flanking motion and, clearing her hands appealingly around the arm of Hugh Grant, who now had reached the top of the stairs. Swinging sinuously, her body as close to him as she could get, her face, alluring in its clever make-up, lifted to his, she patiently was consciously exerting every bit of feminine lure she possessed in an endeavor to gain the boon she wished.

"Oh, Hugh! Won't you please intercede with Mr. Spencer for me? I am afraid he is terribly angry with me, yet I can't imagine what I have done that is wrong. You see I am so nervous, so sensitive, things affect me so easily, and I simply haven't been able to sleep tonight at all. I couldn't help feeling that something terrible might be happening to you, Hugh, and you can't possibly know how queerly it affected me. Of course, I don't want to disturb my father."

Think back over this last month. The days you enjoyed most were the days you felt in great peace. Increase these sunny days by keeping fit.

Avoid common temptation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. It may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. It dulls your enthusiasm, takes the fun out of living.

Kellogg's All-Bran furnishes you with "bulk" in convenient form. All-Bran also provides vitamin B and iron. This gentle natural food is much better than patent medicines. Unlike laxatives, it remains effective with continued use.

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

North fulfilled an optimistic slam contract on the hand below by finding a squeeze on the East hand.

Although the squeeze itself worked out almost automatically, North prepared for the squeeze by carefully sacrificing a trick early in the play to provide timing of the hand and allow for every possibility of making his 12th trick.

North Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

His partner's semi-forcing bid of three clubs, with 3½ honor-tricks in his hand. He could think of no better bid than one showing his own strength, even though he did not have a hideable suit. West made the perfectly harmless opening of a low spade. Declarer won the trick with the ace in dummy and immediately led a club. West's King went up.

North then had seven trumps and decided there were three possibilities for the twelfth. The club King might have been a false-card and played from the King-Jack alone, but to try this out immediately would automatically destroy any other chance of making the hand if it did not work.

North did not care about over-tricks and at Trick 3 led a low diamond out of his hand. This play gave him two more chances of fulfilling his contract.

Either the diamond suit would break 3-3 or a squeeze might develop. West won the diamond trick with his ten-spot and returned a spade.

Declarer then cashed his Ace-King of diamonds and ran his four heart tricks and remaining spade trick, ending up in dummy. East, as the cards lay, was squeezed. He could not keep both a higher diamond than the one remaining in dummy and keep a guard for his club Jack.

In desperation, he threw a club, and North won the suit two tricks, with the Queen of clubs in his own hand dropping the Jack, and the ten of clubs.

Chic Plus REGENCY suits are dandified and chic, as cocky as the garb of the well-dressed beau of long ago. The jackets are about hip length, with huge flaring revers, and the pockets, revers and edges of the coat are bound with silk braid, a typical Regency touch. They are smartest in navy blue, brown, grey, or a lighter weight woolen, with contrasting braid. The Regency footwear that accompanies these suits is the new and novel strap shoe, in colors to match the suits, with a cut-out vamp covered by a multitude of tiny straps.

Try a Milk Masque

Fine Mid-Winter Treatment

By The Beauty Editor

WHEN YOU CONSIDER all the wise beauties of history who used milk in one form or another to retain their pristine freshness, it's little wonder that we are not tempted to go in for this type of thing more often than we do.

A beautiful way to give your tired face a bit of glamour as well as a new lease on life to withstand the ravages of mid-winter frost, is via the milk masque method.

Wrinkles, blackheads and large pores will all yield to the persuasiveness of a milk facial, particularly a restorative treatment of this kind which contains the magic properties of epson salts as well.

A milk masque has always appeared rather fascinating beauty to the women of the past. Famous sirens of history, Nino de L'Enclos, used one religiously every week of her glamorous life. To brighten up a tired face after a long, hard day, there is nothing better to our way of thinking, than a rejuvenating facial. It is happens to be a milk facial so much the better.

Beauty Answers

Question: I am twenty-six years of age and have worn glasses for many years. As my nose is rather long and thin I was wondering if there is any particular type of frame that would make my nose more attractive.

Margaret D. H. Belmont.

Answer: Yes, a nose that is too long will look shorter when a moustache with a low bridge is used. A high bridge will likewise lengthen the appearance of a too short nose. All girls who need or wear eyeglasses will be interested to know that the gentlemen who design spectacles are looking at the matter from the beauty standpoint these days.

Question: Please tell me what causes white spots on the nails? These annoying spots seem to come out continually on my nails, regardless of the good care I take of my cuticle. If you know the cause of these spots, please let me know.

Brainfree.

Answer: The cause of white spots on the finger nails is not infrequently known, but it is believed that they are caused by an injury to the matrix. So, don't go prodding around the nail base when treating the cuticle. Always lift the flesh gently with an orange wood stick, and be particularly careful when cutting dead cuticle.

TIBBETT

Airs Opera CLASSIC

STAR TO STAGE FAMOUS ARIA

By N. F. T.
Lawrence Tibbett again seems fit to demonstrate his marked professional versatility (WEEZ) tonight. Listeners by the lighted dials may hear him hold forth with the coming of 8:30 p. m.

Tall and talented Mr. Tibbett first tackled the celebrated tongue-twisting "Largo Al Faccetto" aria from Rossini's operatic gem, "The Barber of Seville," after which he has in mind to interpret numerous traditional folk songs and selected romantic ballads. Wilfred Pelletier directs the orchestral background.

Two beautiful feminine folk personalities appeared in a bit of a problem for head patrons on the stroke of 9 o'clock.

It was a bit of a problem for head patrons on the stroke of 9 o'clock. Tibbett, who thinks it will not be easy for folks by the lighted dials to choose between having a little of the "Barber of Seville" or a little of the "Largo Al Faccetto," turned to the latter for a little of the "Barber of Seville," after which he has in mind to interpret numerous traditional folk songs and selected romantic ballads. Wilfred Pelletier directs the orchestral background.

Efforts are being made to hitch some sound equipment for Jimmie Linnford and his Cotton Club orchestra when they leave the stage late tonight and play for Metropolitan Theater patrons desiring to dance in the Metropolitan emporium's Platinum Salon. This in order that the air audience will likewise be afforded an earful.

THIS KAR-THAT AIR

One of Phil Baker's best spots in his stage act behind RKO footlights is the Rudy Valley par and pertaining to "Valley," alleged "sweetest tune," which Phil says is "Oh, Pay, Can You Sue." Al Goodman assumed the role of bending duty during the weekly "Beauty Box Theater" broadcast tonight (WEEZ) at 10 o'clock, the production to be "Lady in Ermine," starring Gladys Swarthout and John Barclay. Chatter Macon is directing the newest EFA orchestra group called for Yankee Network making (WAAZ) this afternoon at 3 p. m. Advocates of preparedness will appreciate what Secretary of War D. C. Hoagland has to say (WEEZ) tonight as he addresses a crowd-tens of thousands at a dinner between 10:30 and 11 o'clock.

MATRON Faces Jail in GUNPLAY

TARR SHOOTING SENTENCE DUE

Unable to decide immediately just what sentence should be meted out to Mrs. Helen D. Currier, 49-year-old Rockport matron, Judge Harold P. Williams had the matter under advisement today.

He found Mrs. Currier guilty of shooting at Joseph P. H. Tarr Jr. in the street in front of the Boston Hotel in the afternoon of January 10. Judge Williams made his finding after Mrs. Currier had been indicted herself and told the jury that she was guilty.

"I was in the most dire need at the time of the shooting. The welfare said they would help me and Mr. Tarr said he could do nothing more."

2 GIRLS Quizzed in KILLING

REPRISAL FEAR BALKS CLUES

Two girl entertainers at another night club were questioned by police today about the Cosmos Club slaying of Joseph P. "Red" Sweeney, Friday.

Detectives Haller and Pimental took them to Station 4 on information they were at the Cosmos Club when Sweeney was shot.

Waited Dying

While the girls were under questioning it became known that police had obtained further information and that the girls were waiting for the hospital.

"Beano" Called

David P. "Beano" Green was not there at the time of the shooting and was not notified of the shooting.

Immediate action was taken to locate the girls. They were found at the club.

BETTY ALDEN

on 'Beacon Hill'

Fashion Show at Vendome
Next Tuesday

By BETTY ALDEN

EVERY PRETTY GIRL who can indulge a sense of the dramatic in assembling her costume for spring will find a variety of quaint and airy influences in the Regency and Directoire modes which are in the ascendency among the spring fashions. . . . Just how effective these styles (with the hide and seek bonnet and wasp-like waistline) are Missy will have an opportunity to see when Mrs. James Lincoln Huntington presents a fashion show in the Nippon Room of the Vendome on Tuesday, February 19. . . .

Mrs. Huntington, the former Sally Pierce, represents the Sans Non Shop, which in spite of its name, has been closely identified with the names of members of Boston's first families since its beginning. . . . Mrs. Huntington's predecessor in the business was Mrs. Arthur Lithgow Devens, mother-in-law of Mrs. Charlie Devens. . . .

Mrs. Julian T. Leonard has already ventured out in her new poke bonnet which, though very youthful and becoming, would be considered extremely daring in some of Boston's conservative gatherings. . . . Yesterday afternoon she was encountered chatting with friends at the snack in Mrs. Harold Everett Porter's model apartment at which Mrs. Porter shared hostess responsibilities with Mrs. Harold McNeil and Mrs. Nathaniel Niles. . . .

Plan European Trip
AMAZINGLY EFFICIENT in supervising the details of the party in spite of being in a flurry of excitement prior to leaving in a few days for Europe, Mrs. McNeil was very chic and youthful in a black wool dress ornamented with rhinestone clips and a short black kidskin cape. . . . On the 22nd, with her two youngest daughters, Janet and Nancy, Mrs. McNeil will start the journey which will ultimately reunite them with Virginia, who has been abroad since September. . . . It will probably be late in the summer before the quartet comes back to these shores. . . . Louise, the fourth daughter, evidently believes in the old adage, business before pleasure, for she is sacrificing the joy and fun of the trip to complete her secretarial course. . . . However, life at home isn't merely a dreary round of speed tests and bookkeeping for this attractive post-dob as she headed the girls who assisted at the tea tables at the snack in the afternoon and last evening the play at the Colonial absorbed her attention. . . .

Bright, round nickel buttons on the front of the tailored woolen dresses of Marion Leeson and Mrs. Francis A. Harding, Jr., reflected the lights from the tall red tapers on the tea table at the snack as these two charming young ladies assisted in serving. . . . Miss Leeson wore turquoise blue and Mrs. Harding's dress had hat of burgundy red. . . .

Entertains Young Folks

MRS. HAROLD J. COOLIDGE and Mrs. John Yerxa both kept their fur coats on as they poured and exchanged notes on the pranks of their young children. . . . Mrs. Coolidge registered a little apprehension about the prospects of entertaining a group of little tots in honor of her child's birthday today, as it will put her abilities as a hostess to the very young to the test for the first time. . . .

Though these snacks are instigated in the interests of the Emergency Campaign and spread the urge to give even the smallest contribution, they are typical social gatherings where friends collect in groups to discuss the pleasant social events to come or the latest play. . . . Several of the guests yesterday afternoon were enthusiastically anticipating the next dance at the Cambridge Boat Club, scheduled for the 26th. . . . Mrs. Porter is already making plans to entertain at a cocktail party before taking her guests on to this dance. . . .

A hum of conversation arose from the davenport where Mrs. Talbot Chase, Mrs. A. Burr Comstock, Mrs. Parker Converse and Mrs. Robert C. Terry were discussing the campaign. . . . Mrs. Henry I. Harriman and her daughter, Mrs. Dudley Milliken, Mrs. Adolf Leeds, Mrs. Albert Bradley Carter, who delivered the message from the campaign headquarters; Molly Wheeler, Elizabeth Marshall and Estelle Winwood, that talented actress who is appearing in a current play in town, were also entertained at this party. . . .

Many Attend Premiere

REBEKAH HOBBS just had time to dash home to the snack to dress for dinner and the theater, for she would not miss a first night and "Dodsworth," at the Colonial, attracted most of Boston's inveterate first nighters. . . . as well as many others interested in Sinclair Lewis' satire on the romantic ideas of American women. . . .

Two Vincent Club members, who are taking their share of responsibility for the success of the coming revue, were in the audience, Isabella Gardner and Alice Burrage. . . . Isabella's simple black velvet dinner dress was brightened by a rhinestone girdle. . . . Alice and her escort preferred to enjoy the play rather than to go to the theater, as they did not bother to change from their daytime clothes. . . .

Mildred Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver S. Leland, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Walker, Mrs. Thomas Mandell, Mrs. Frank G. Chase, Catherine Blake, Marie Louise Gagnon and Mrs. E. Fred Cullen also enjoyed the opening. . . .

During the intermission, the ladies who are endeavoring to acquire a note of individuality in their attire enviously regarded the extreme and novel arrangement of Mary Elizabeth Sears' blonde locks. . . . She sat with her mother, Mrs. Richard Sears. . . .

Mrs. Henry Howard Fay entertained the ladies of the parish of Emmanuel Church at her home on Beacon street yesterday afternoon. . . .

GUEST AT Many Social Gatherings

ONE OF THE LEADERS in gatherings of youthful socialites, whether at formal dances or impromptu skating or skating parties, Miss Marie Stevenson is a vibrant and peppy personality. . . . She is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Lee of Beverly Farms. . . .

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

'One Gallon of Hell'

Just a Bit of Washing, But It Nearly Proved Fatal

By FLOYD GIBBONS

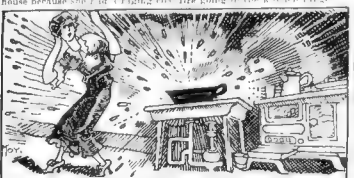

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Well, fellow adventurers, with your yarns rolling in thick and fast, I am hard put to it to say which one I like best. When you come right down to it, there is no such thing as a bad adventure. They're all good. I have picked one today, boys and girls, because it is a warning—a dugone good warning of what might easily happen to you. And you might not even be as lucky as Mrs. Lillian Carey of First street, Highlands, N. J., who told me the story.

A lot of you, I know, are doing—and have done time and again—the same thing that put Mrs. Carey in the greatest peril she has ever encountered. She was fidgety and nervous the day it happened. That may account for some of it—maybe the reason she did things she knew better than to do.

It was a brisk, chilly November day, four years ago. Mrs. Carey had finished her day's work and did not know what to do with herself, the way that plenty of you had to do when you were out of your work and had to take weeks out of her life and leave her with a long memory that she will never lose.

She went to the kitchen to get a drink of water. The kitchen was dangerous—knowing that the fire was in the room while she was in it, she was subjected to the danger of the fire. She was not to be so easily fooled. She was not to be so easily fooled. She was not to be so easily fooled.

Mrs. Carey can't think to this day what was the matter with her. She can only explain it by the fact that she was tired and fidgety. But she brought that napkin into the house and emptied it in a basin in the kitchen sink, right by that roaring coal fire in the hearth. It was all right for a while. She went to work washing out those dresses and got along swimmingly until she came to one with a white collar that didn't look very clean. She took the collar up between her fingers and started to rub it, when suddenly that whole basin full of napkins blew up right in her face.

In an instant, that whole kitchen was a roaring bonfire. Flames reached out and enveloped Mrs. Carey. Her clothing caught fire. The blaze was creeping up the sides of her dress, leaping at her face, threatening any minute to get in her mouth and nose. She drew into her lungs. Confused she ran out on the porch—just as the stream.

Her dog was tied beneath the porch, just outside the door. When he saw the flames, screaming apparition that came flying out from the house, he began to bark. His barking called the attention of the neighbors. They came running to the scene—and stopped. They were afraid of the fire—afraid of the growing dog, standing at the foot of the porch steps where they would have to pass him to get to the kitchen woman. In all that crowd of fire and smoke, one would risk a burn—or a dog bite—to help a woman in such a peril of her life. They just stood around watching—not a word for a long time.

If you asked Mrs. Carey what she was doing, she couldn't tell you. All she was conscious of was the heat and the pain there gaping at her—watching her burn to death. If she could, she didn't know it. If she could, she didn't know it. If she could, she didn't know it.

Finally one man did come to the rescue, and that had done a medal if ever anyone did. One of the neighbors finally got his wits together sufficiently to call the landlord, Jerry Kaderbach, and Jerry didn't stop to worry about getting a ladder or getting burnt. He came running with a fire extinguisher, but when he saw Mrs. Carey he didn't bother with that. He threw the extinguisher aside, tore down a pane from the door and began beating out the flames that were fast covering the poor woman's body.

When he had finished, Mrs. Carey was saved from the flames and tucked in the fire. He got that fire out of the house and then took her to the hospital. He got that fire out of the house and then took her to the hospital. He got that fire out of the house and then took her to the hospital.

Well, boys and girls, there's your warning. Don't messes with liquid napkins or anything of the kind. It's a sure way to get into a bad fix. And here's another warning for you. Send in this story of yours. Get your ten-dollar bill and spend it before the government it devalues it again. Tomorrow you hear from another new member on what happens when Judge Lynch comes.

BOWLING Boom NOTED JACK STAFFORD AIDS GAME

By Ed Cogswell

Not since the depression has the bowling sport been so popular as in the case this season. From all parts of New England is received the report that more trade leagues have been organized and are playing out their schedule of matches.

This is not to count the regular participants of the sport who daily indulge in casting the ebony ball for the 1-3 pocket hit of the candlepin.

The remarkable boom in the sport was noticeable early last fall by the New England Bowling Association. Through President Jack Stafford the members of the association were informed in December of last month that the association was to be reorganized and to play out its schedule of matches.

Jack Stafford, president of the association, is a well-known bowler in the Boston area. He has been playing for many years and has won many titles. He is a member of the Boston Bowling Club and has been playing for many years.

Three of the monthly bowlers have been decided, and now is opened the February bowlers under the same conditions as the previous ones. This makes the total amount of cash given to the bowlers $1,120.

The three highest consecutive strikes put the 16 leading bowlers in the qualifying round of semi-finals and the two top bowlers in each alley, 32 in all, were complete in the final when the $250 is divided among the eight high men. Stafford is widely known to sport followers. He was umpire in the American Baseball League and in minor leagues for many years, as well as public announcer at the prominent athletic events in Greater Boston.

The past eight years he has been manager of the Huntington Club, and is a great booster for the bowling sport.

Wells of the Mayflower League in the State of St. George League at New Bedford, set out to make a name for himself in bowling circles by hitting the pin for 145 in his first strike, a new record for the league, but dropped by the way side his two following tries for 140 and 135. His total score being 347. Cole topped the list in the league with 325.

National Defense Week a Clarion Call to Patriotic Americans

FIRST of all first things is the fullest possible security for the national defense.

To fail in defense is to fail in everything. All else is by comparison a secondary consideration.

No matter how pressing other problems may appear their importance pales into insignificance when contrasted against the security and integrity of the land we love.

We are ready to shed the last drop of our blood to prevent the foreigner taking an inch of our territory.

We should be as ready to prevent the shedding of one drop more than is necessary for its defense.

THE better we are prepared to defend America the less likely that we shall be called upon to defend her against a foreign invasion.

There is no substitute for adequate preparedness and to be adequate it must be equal to the strongest in all the essentials of defense.

As long as navies are needed we must have a NAVY SECOND TO NONE.

Airplanes and submarines may some day render battleships and cruisers obsolete, but until that time comes we must have a surface navy EQUAL to the STRONGEST.

OUR army need not be so large as those of European nations to whom warfare is a business, the business of invading neighboring territory whenever the opportunity is presented, but it should be much larger than it is and maintained at a standard of maximum efficiency.

It should be organized on a basis of admitting of immediate enlargement, and supported by a system of military training camps and a plan of COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING for ALL physically fit STUDENTS of STATE SUPPORTED COLLEGES.

The time and energy required for military training are a small sacrifice for the privilege of a free college education.

AMERICAN colleges are for the training of American citizens and a citizen's first duty is to be prepared as fully as possible to defend his citizenship in a free, self-governing America.

Our aviation forces should be STRONGER than the STRONGEST.

We have a longer coast line to defend than any other nation.

An American aviation force stronger than the strongest of any other power would not be a challenge.

Nothing in the way of our national defenses would be a challenge because we are not a CHALLENGING NATION.

NOTHING in our history warrants the fear on the part of other nations that we are intent upon conquering them for purposes of conquest.

"Defense NOT defiance" is both our declaration and our consistent policy.

But to be secure in our defenses we must be fully prepared.

We are a peaceful but not pacifist nation. There are no pacifist nations.

Those that were no longer in existence and those that are nearly so are SUBJECT NATIONS.

THE shores of history are strewn with the wrecks of the nations that were not prepared to defend themselves.

Their records are to be found in the obituary columns.

Some have more beautiful obituaries than others, but most of them are the sorry reading of a sad mistake.

They had no military defense and they died.

A nation is not prepared to defend his country, his liberties, his ideals, his standards, his civilization as no right to claim the advantages this nation affords or the protection of its flag.

Lincoln, America's Guide His Wisdom Is Needed and Must Be Heeded Today

LINCOLN's birthday comes this year with opportuneness. His deathless words and exalted character speak reminders to his countrymen which they sorely need in this perplexed and distraught time.

Lincoln, too, lived in a period of danger and crisis for the country. It was an era of excited councils, divided opinions and tragic conflict.

The country might have perished but for his sanity, sobriety and steadfastness. It was his pure Americanism and unwavering loyalty to his country's institutions that led the country out of danger THEN, and may guide us out of danger NOW.

HIS words seem almost fashioned for the present hour.

"LET US STAND BY OUR DUTY," SAID HE, "FEARLESSLY AND EFFECTIVELY."

"LET US BE DIVERTED BY NONE OF THOSE SOPHISTICAL CONTRIVANCES WHEREBY WE ARE SO INDUSTRIOUSLY FLIED AND BELABORED."

"NEITHER LET US BE SLANDERED FROM OUR DUTY BY FALSE ACCUSATIONS AGAINST US."

"SOPHISTICAL CONTRIVANCES" is a perfect description of the mad economics and the harum-scarum notions of finance with which the country is today "SO INDUSTRIOUSLY FLIED AND BELABORED."

LINCOLN suffered, as we do, from the know-it-alls and the shallow extremists, but amid all the turmoil of war and war-bred controversies, he stood loyally by the American system of government and our political institutions, which he declared had contributed more "TO THE ENDS OF CIVIL AND RELIGIOUS LIBERTY THAN ANY OF WHICH THE HISTORY OF FORMER TIMES TELLS US."

Our prime duty, according to Lincoln, was to transmit these institutions "UNDECAVED BY TIME AND UNTORN BY USURPATION TO THE LATEST GENERATION THAT FATE SHALL PERMIT THE WORLD TO KNOW."

The true dangers to America's survival were NOT FROM WITHOUT, BUT FROM WITHIN!

He feared the appearance among our people of the demagogue—the man of talent, but of vain and unscrupulous ambition.

Such a man, said Lincoln, would see "NO DISTINCTION (FOR HIMSELF) IN ADDING STORY TO STORY UPON THE MONUMENTS ERECTED TO THE MEMORY OF OTHERS." His ambition would wreak itself either "AT THE EXPENSE OF EMANCIPATING SLAVES, OR ENSLAVING FREE-MEN."

WHILE a man of this type would as willingly, perhaps more so, acquire the distinction at which he aimed by doing good rather than harm, yet if there were "NOTHING LEFT TO BE DONE IN THE WAY OF BUILDING UP, HE WOULD SET BOLDLY TO THE TASK OF PULLING DOWN."

Leading the great men who founded and built our country as "PILLARS OF THE TEMPLE OF LIBERTY," Lincoln foresaw that, now that they have passed away, the temple must fall unless their descendants "SUPPLY THEIR PLACES WITH OTHER PILLARS, HEWN FROM THE SOLID QUARRY OF SOBER REASON."

The materials for our support and defense, he insisted, must be sought in the GENERAL INTELLIGENCE, SOUND MORALITY, AND, IN PARTICULAR, A REVERENCE FOR OUR CONSTITUTION AND LAWS."

"UPON THESE," SAID LINCOLN, "LET THE PROUD FABRIC OF OUR FREEDOM REST, AS THE ROCK OF ITS BASIS."

Great words, deep wisdom, sound counsel—from one of the greatest of all Americans!

On this, his birthday, LET US plain and sober Americans, unconfused by the fleeting cries of the moment—but with our head on our shoulders and our feet on the ground—bethink ourselves of these things!

Plenty of Flags For This School

The new Jeremiah E. Burke High School for Girls in Dorchester will have a genuine sufficiency of flags. And they'll all be Stars and Stripes.

Tomorrow evening Grand Army organizations will hold exercises at which fifty silken flags will be presented to the school.

Each flag is given in memory of some veteran who fought for his country or will represent some veterans' organization.

The possession of such a fine stand of flags, given in such a way, is sure to fire the spirit of patriotism.

'WITH MALICE TOWARD NONE'

"With malice toward none, with charity for all," As Lincoln said, we must maintain That sword upon the wall.

He knew the cost of war, in lives that could have been Saved from a needless sacrifice. Had that sword then been keen.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Have Women Imagination?

How much imagination has the average woman?

How far can she reach, mentally, beyond her personal experience and a local viewpoint?

Adeline Rogers, St. John, speaking on this point, noted a peculiar thing at the Lindbergh kidnapping trial.

Bruno Hauptmann is, to Adeline, an abhorrent creature.

Guilty or innocent, he gives her the creeps. Yet Elsie Robinson has found that most of the women in that New Jersey courtroom believed him to be innocent!

What reason?

Most of them gave none. Simply got that "set" look when questioned. Some frankly admitted they thought he was "too nice looking to have done a terrible thing like that." Beneath this, however, there was another motive.

They all, said Adeline, "speak much and often of Hauptmann's baby. Of the fact that he is not allowed to see that baby. Or his poor, devoted, loyal wife."

They could see the rage and grief of a father shut away from his child, for they and their husbands would feel in exactly the same way if they were forbidden to see theirs.

Such a refusal, they felt, was against all natural law. A parent's right came before all other.

They could see Baby Lindy's father, in a few eyes forever haunted by the memory of those terrible days.

They could see Baby Lindy's mother, her heart forever broken, tragic, pitiful, outrageous—but utterly alien to common normal experience. And so it could not come within their mental or emotional comprehension.

In vain do you point out the damning facts. They refuse to accept them. Women, they respond, are ALWAYS good to their children.

The same attitude prevails in their private affairs. Any woman—save those brilliant exceptions who defy sex limitations—will always reduce any argument to personal terms. Judge any situation by her personal standards.

Unreasonable? Of course. But that's the way women are.

What's your idea?

New Crime Detection

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEART METRONOME NEWS

There is foreboding possibility of a new and startling technique of crime detection in the minutely accurate description of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, handed to the police November 1932, by Dr. Dudley D. Schoenfeld, noted p 27-28.

In this written study of crime, prepared two years ago, I'm sure, prepared the arrest of Hauptmann.

Dr. Schoenfeld said: The kidnaper was German. He lived in the Bronx.

He was between 30 and 40 years old. His occupation "showed a mechanical aptitude."

He had been in prison. He was a loner worker. He was of the scholastic type, the plodder, slow personality—which, psychologists tell me, exactly fits Hauptmann.

This is all a matter of police records in the memorandum given to Detective Lieutenant James Finch by Dr. Schoenfeld. There is no record that official police agencies, until the tracing of the money, drew out of the void any such description of the man.

I refer, specifically, to the researcher and the remarkable prediction regarding certain crimes made by Dr. William J. Hickson, nationally known psychiatrist, for many years at the head of Chicago's "Crime Laboratory," the only institution for the every day case study of crime in the country.

The laboratory was established in the Chicago municipal court and staffed with skilled psychiatrists under the direction of Dr. Hickson. A boy of perhaps eight or ten would be brought in for some juvenile offense.

He would be given a thorough psychic examination and the file would go on a card.

The ten years would pass. A youth would be charged with a crime, perhaps a serious offense. The routine check would be made upon the old card. The prophecy would come true.

This happened many times in the Chicago "Crime Laboratory."

Japan Would Block Fortifying Hawaii

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, Jr.

From Tokio comes Japan's latest challenge to the United States.

This time the dictatorship which rules Japan today with an iron hand speaks through the views of the Navy, Admiral O'Donnell.

The views of the Admiral are given to the world demand insofar as the present of the views of the Minister of War who speaks for the army, which dominates the Tokyo government today.

The United States put the United States on notice that Japan intends to object to the future fortification of the territory of Hawaii or of any part of the other insular possessions of the United States in the Pacific.

At the Washington Conference in the first year of the Harding administration Japan proposed the abandonment of all further fortifications not only of Guam and the Philippines and the islands in between, but even of the Aleutian Islands and of the Hawaiian Islands.

In order to induce Japan to agree to any naval limitation the United States in the Japanese demand, except insofar as the Hawaiian Islands were involved.

The Harding administration in order to prevent the Washington Conference from being longer dominated by Japan, weakly agreed to stop fortifying all of the insular possessions in the Pacific with the single exception of the Hawaiian Islands.

Now comes the renewal of Japan's original demand. In the meantime Japan has notified the United States that the Washington Treaty will not be renewed in two years hence. Japan has built up her navy to treaty strength.

The dictatorship which rules Japan today has interpreted the Japanese people the abandonment by the United States of the Philippine Islands as being prompted largely by the fear of the American Congress that the United States gets out of the Philippines voluntarily it will be driven by the Army and Navy of Japan.

DISCREDIT ROOSEVELT

The dictatorship which rules Japan today seeks no opportunity to discredit the leadership of President Roosevelt by giving the widest Japanese publicity to the views of the senators and representatives in Congress who, for one reason or another, have opposed the efforts of President Roosevelt to build up the navy and the merchant marine of the United States.

Speeches of those who follow Roosevelt's leadership in the field of national defense are exceedingly helpful to the dictatorship which rules Japan which is striving to make the Japanese people believe that the demands of the Japanese government in regard to the navy and kindred subjects will be hailed with sympathy by a large part of the American people.

Herein lies the danger of the American people in relating to the United States and Japan.

Nothing that the government at Washington says in reply to Japanese demands either regarding the fortification of our insular possessions or the limitation of the money necessary to build up the navy to treaty strength will have much weight at this time.

The only way that the Congress of the United States can promote peace between the United States and Japan is for the Congress to support the leadership of the President by actually appropriating the money necessary to build up the navy to treaty strength.

And to call a halt upon the senatorial and congressional opposing expeditions against the national defense and its auxiliary—commercial as well as military—support and our merchant marine.

No nation can hope to maintain Japan as a friendly neighbor which forfeits the respect of the people.

And any nation that supinely surrenders its rights and independence advocates its responsibility in the Pacific is certain to invite the contempt of the proud people of Japan and must expect to suffer the inevitable consequences of such a misfortune.

Progress Is Slow

By Hendrik Van Loon

One of the troubles with this world (that always makes a good beginning) is the fact that so many people have timetable minds.

They expect absolute regularity, and the worst thing that can happen to them is to discover that a train, sort mysterious reason, decides to be three minutes late.

They feel this as a part of personal outrage.

In more important affairs they speak to the good Lord about it, but they are just as much upset by the failure of the sun to come out at the hour given in an astronomical calendar.

Now as life with a capital letter is, in absolute illogical, it follows that most events that have to do with the daily affairs of mankind can not possibly be run according to a timetable schedule.

Once you accept this fact and make it a part of your own philosophy of life, you will be perfectly happy. Refuse to accept it, and you will fret and be uncomfortable and a nuisance to all your projects until the end of your days.

OUR JURY SYSTEM

Take the subject which I mentioned only a few days ago, our present jury system.

The original idea of Trial by Jury was a perfectly natural and quite unavoidable development out of the social and economic conditions in which the trial of the Middle Ages. Some method had to be found by which the law of the land could be protected against the despotism of the landed proprietors.

But a scheme that worked quite satisfactorily in an age when society was almost as simple as it is now, became an absurdity in an era when society was rapidly becoming complicated as the side of my stop-watch.

We all recognize this fact and a great many people, I sincerely believe, are in favor of doing something to some other country that would produce better results.

It may be a century or more, but I have no doubt that in the course of a few more centuries we shall actually derive a better method of settling our disputes by means of a jury. But it will be very slow work.

It may be a century or more. For mankind does not work things out according to a definite schedule of progress.

THERE IT IS

This apparent indifference, on the part of the vast majority of all the people, towards problems that seem of such great and immediate importance to the passengers of time-table minds, may indeed be a most unfortunate manifestation of mankind's inherent laziness and inertia.

But there it is. That is the way the good Lord has created man.

And it never pays to try to improve upon the handwork of the good Lord.

I am quite sure that a hundred years hence our descendants will look at the conditions under which we live in this same spirit of a superior condescension which we ourselves now bestow upon our poor, ignorant ancestors of the Middle Ages or the Colonial period.

"These things have I spoken unto you that in me you might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."—St. John xvi, 33. Suggested by the Rev. Edwin H. Gibson, pastor of the First Parish, Brockton.
